The event was conceived and coordinated by Monica Moyer, Community Event Coordinator and Public Affairs Director; the recent North Carolina Mount Olive College graduate acquired a drive for community activism and public advocacy during her work as an executive assistant to the directors of both the Community Partners Commission Assoc., Inc and The Sabaoth Group. Monica is credited with single handedly devising strategies to build the CPCA, Inc, resource data base and conducting daily intakes for services to thousands of low-income families. The success of the "Reaching Our Destiny Through Education" back to school event is yet another view of Monica Moyer's skill as a community coordinator and public information director.

FOCUSED ON THE EDUCATIONAL SUCCESS OF OUR CHILDREN

The main focus of the event was to encourage the youth to expect and receive great success in the upcoming school year. To show their support each organization contributed a major amount of effort to seek finances and advocacy for the youth of the community. Thousands of dollars of cash and in-kind donations made it possible to give the youth and their families a pre-school boost towards books, book bags supplies and other basic necessities. More than eight thousand dollars was provided and there was still a shortage at the end of the day. We continue to seek donations and assistance to help the young people we did not serve at this years event.
